5.05 The One With The Kips

Chandler and Monica, tired of sneaking around, each make up an excuse to leave town and then go away for a weekend together.

They end up fighting the whole time and Chandler's afraid it may be over.

Ross struggles to reveal his agreement with Emily not to see Rachel anymore.

Rachel doesn't take it very well;

She doesn't want to give up Ross, nor get left out of the group like Chandler's old roommate, Kip.

Joey finds some similarities in Chandler's and Monica's stories about the weekend, and figures out the truth;

Monica and Chandler swear him to secrecy(n. 保密).

Opening Credits

[Scene: Monica and Rachel's, the next morning, Chandler, Joey, and Phoebe are eating breakfast.]

Monica: (entering from her room) Hey, guess what I'm doing this weekend! I'm going to this culinary fair in New Jersey.

Phoebe: Oh weird, Chandler just told us he's got a conference there!

Monica: Oh now that-that-that's funny, it seems like Chandler's conference could've been in Connecticut or Vermont.

Connecticut n. (美国)康涅狄格/Vermont n. 佛蒙特州(美国州名)

Chandler: I'm not in charge of where the conference is held. Do you want people to think it's a fake conference? It's a real conference.

Ross: (entering) Hey.

Joey: Hey!

Monica: Hey.

Ross: Is Rachel here? I gotta talk to her.

Monica: No, she's out shopping.

Ross: Damn!

Chandler: What's going on?

Ross: I told Emily to come. And I just need to y'know, talk to Rachel about it.

Phoebe: Wait a minute! So when Emily comes you're just, you're not gonna see Rachel anymore?

Ross: Well look, I'm just trying to focus on the "I get to see my wife" part, all right? And not the part that makes me do this. (He takes a big swig of Pepto Bismol.)

swig n. 痛饮 大喝(尤指从瓶口喝的)/Pepto-Bismol 'is an over-the-counter medication(n. 非处方药物) produced by the Procter and Gamble company used to treat minor digestive system(n. 消化系统) upset(n. 恶心). Its active ingredient is Bismuth subsalicylate. The primary symptoms aided by Pepto-Bismol are nausea, heartburn(n. 心痛), indigestion(n. 消化不良), upset stomach(n. 肚子痛), diarrhea(n. 腹泻), and other temporary discomforts of the stomach and gastrointestinal tract(n. 肠胃道). Pepto-Bismol is produced in a variety of forms, including chewable tablets and swallowable caplets, but is best known for its original formula, a thick liquid medicine. This original formula is colored a pale pink tone(n. 色调), and flavored wintergreen(n. 鹿蹄草). These traits have become generally associated with the medicine to the degree that something may be described as "Pepto-Bismol pink" or as tasting like "Pepto-Bismol". These are generally considered uncomplimentary(adj. 贬损的) traits, because of the unpleasant associations with the medication and the general malaise(n. 不舒服) of stomach problems.

Monica: Wow, so you guys are, you're never gonna be in the same room together? How is that even gonna work?

Chandler: Aww, man! (They go into Monica's room.)

Rachel: (going through the mail) Oh look! A letter from my mom.

Ross: So, Rach, y'know-y'know how Emily's coming right?

Rachel: Oh yeah! I know.

[Cut to Monica's bedroom, Chandler is trying to listen through the door.]

Joey: (holding a box) Well, remember when they got in that big fight and broke-up and we were all stuck in her with no food or anything? Well, when Ross said Rachel at the wedding, I figured it was gonna happen again, so I hid this in here.

Monica: Ooh, candy bars, crossword puzzles :

candy bar n. 单独包装的块状糖

Phoebe: Ooh, Madlibs, mine! (Grabs it.) Okay, Name of someone in room.

Mad Libs : (from lat. "ad libitum(adv.随意)" - as you wish) is a word game where one player prompts(v.提示) another for a list of words to substitute for(v.替换 代替) blanks in a story; these word substitutions have a humorous effect when the resulting story is then read aloud. The game is especially popular with American children and is frequently played as a party game or as a pastime. Mad Libs was invented in the 1950s by Leonard Stern and Roger Price, who published the first editions themselves. Mad Libs books are still published by Price Stern Sloan, an imprint of Penguin Group, cofounded by Roger Price and Leonard Stern. Mad Libs consist of a book that has a short story on each page, but with many of the key words replaced with blanks. Beneath each blank is specified(v.指定) a lexical(adj.词汇的) or other category, such as noun, verb, place, or a part of the body. One player asks the other players, in turn, to contribute some word for the specified type for each blank. Finally, the completed story is read aloud. Since none of the contributors knows what context their word will be used in, the result is usually comic, surreal(adj.超现实主义的) and somewhat nonsensical(adj.荒谬的). For example, a Mad Lib might initially look like this:

"One day, _____ to New York to see the _____."

(name of person) (past-tense verb) (noun)

After completing the Mad Lib, it might read:

"One day, Bob Gildoff Jumped to New York to see the orange."

Several imitations of Mad Libs have been created, most of them on the Internet. Imitation Mad Libs are sometimes used in educational settings to help teach the parts of speech.

Joey: You know, at the Taj Mahal he has his own private glss elevator. That's right Made by Otis Elevators. And they don't usually do glass.

The Tāj Mahal is a mausoleum(n. 陵墓) located in Agra, India. The Mughal Emperor Shāh Jahān commissioned(v. 委任) it as a mausoleum for his favourite wife, Mumtaz Mahal. Construction began in 1632 and was completed in approximately 1653. Some dispute surrounds the question of who designed the Taj Mahal; it is clear a team of designers and craftsmen were responsible for the design, with Ustad Ahmad Lahauri considered the most likely candidate as the principal designer. The Taj Mahal (sometimes called "the Taj") is generally considered the finest example of Mughal architecture, a style that combines elements of Persian, Turkish, Indian, and Islamic(adj. 伊斯兰教的) architectural styles. While the white domed(adj. 有穹顶的) marble(n. 大理石) mausoleum is the most familiar part of the monument, the Taj Mahal is actually an integrated complex of structures. It was listed as a UNESCO(n. 联合国教科文组织) World Heritage Site in 1983 when it was described as a "universally admired masterpieces of the world's heritage

The Taj Mahal, viewed from the Northern bank of Yamuna river.

The Otis Elevator Company is the world's largest manufacturer of vertical transportation systems, principally(adj. 主要地) elevators and escalators(n. 自动扶梯). Founded in Yonkers, New York, USA in 1853 by Elisha Otis, the company pioneered the development of the safety elevator, which used a special mechanism to lock the elevator car in place(adv. 在合适的位置) should the hoisting ropes fail. Otis made skyscrapers possible by providing safe mechanical transport to upper floors. Otis has installed elevators in some of the world's famous tall structures, including the Eiffel Tower, Empire State Building, Main Building, World Trade Center and Petronas Twin Towers.

Alka-Seltzer is a brand name owned by the German Bayer Corporation for a line of medications sold over the counter and taken by means of rapidly dissolving tablets that form an effervescent(adj. 冒泡的) solution(n. 溶解) in water. The original Alka-Seltzer was created by Mikey Wiseman. It is a remedy for headache, indigestion and hangover(n. 宿醉). Alka-Seltzer is a combination of aspirin (acetylsalicylic acid), baking soda (sodium bicarbonate) and citric acid(n. 柠檬酸), designed to treat pain and simultaneously neutralize(v. 压制) excess stomach acid (the "Alka" being derived from the word "alkali"). It is provided in the form of large effervescent tablets, about 1 inch (25 mm) in diameter, which are dissolved (two at a time for the usual adult dosage) in a glass of water. As the tablets dissolve, the acid and bicarbonate react vigorously producing carbon dioxide gas (hence the "Seltzer"), which also produces enough agitation(n. 搅动 激动) to allow the active ingredients to dissolve readily. The patient then ingests(v. 咽下) the resulting solution.
