Janine 不喜欢和他们相处，这种情绪愈演愈烈，最终 Janine 和乔伊分手，Janine 搬离。

6.11 The One With The Apothecary Table

Rachel buys furniture from Pottery Barn, but tells Phoebe she got it at a flea market, because Phoebe hates Pottery Barn.

The deception is complicated by the fact that Ross buys an identical table from Pottery Barn.

Joey and Janine spend time with Monica and Chandler;

Janine doesn't like hanging out with them, and hard feelings grow and grow until Joey and Janine break up and Janine moves out.

[Scene: Monica and Chandler's, everyone is there as Joey enters happily.]

Joey: Hey!

Ross: Hey!

Joey: Listen, do you guys think I have a chance with Janine?

Monica: Honey, we have been through this before!

be through this v. 谈过这个

Rachel: Yeah. Don't do this to yourself.

Phoebe: She's made it pretty clear, it is not going to happen.

Joey: Well all right then, I guess I shouldn't get too excited about the fact (excitedly) that I just kissed her!

Monica: You serious?!

Chandler: That's great!

Monica: Really?!

Phoebe: Yeah well, we'll see.

Ross: You kissed her.

Joey: Oh we kissed it up real nice.

Ross: So you ended up with Janine. Well, congratulations, you won fair and square.

Rachel: Yeah, it was real neck and neck there for a while.

Neck and neck 是指比赛进行得很激烈 '竞争双方并驾齐驱 不分上下 ° Neck and neck 这个说法原先是来自比赛 '如赛跑 `赛马等 °就拿赛马来说吧 '有的时候两匹马齐头并进 '很难分辨出那匹马在前头 '那一匹在后头 °在有的情况下 '一匹马由于它的脖子比另一匹马先到终点而获胜 '有的时候甚至由于它的头 '或它的鼻子先到而成了冠军 °但是 'neck and neck 现在也经常用在别的竞争方面[eg:Right now, only a week from the election, the republicans and the democrats are running neck to neck and none of the experts can predict which party will win]

Chandler: So you kissed her, so what happened after that?

Joey: I came over here to tell you guys.

Chandler: So she's just waiting over there for ya?

(Joey nods yes, but suddenly realizes what he did and runs out of the apartment and back to his place.)

Opening Credits

[Scene: Central Perk, Joey and Janine are pretty much making out at one of the tables as Monica and Rachel look on from the couch.]

Joey: Okay. (They kiss.)

Janine: Okay, now I'm really late. (Gets up.)

Joey: Okay, I'm all right, okay, but hey, could you just leave your lips? (She kisses him on the cheek and starts to leave.)

Janine: (to Monica and Rachel) Bye.

Monica: Bye. (Janine exits.)

Joey: Have you kissed her yet? It's awesome! I could do it forever! Y'know what? She—she kisses better than my mom cooks!

Monica: I am ~~so~~ glad you said cooks.

Rachel: I know.

Joey: Look, it's like imagine your best kiss ever. Right? Okay, now multiply that by, like, 10. Wait a second, you dated Ross. And you date Chandler. Okay, multiply it by, like, 50.

Chandler: And I─m blah? Listen, the only thing more boring than watching modern dance is having to listen to you talk about it, (Imitating her) "Oh Chandler, I just lost myself in the (mocks badly) moment."

Modern dance is a dance form developed in the early 20th century. Although the term Modern dances has also been applied to a category of 20th Century ballroom dances(n. 舞厅舞蹈), Modern dance as a term usually refers to 20th century concert dance. In the early 1900s a few dancers in Europe started to rebel against the rigid constraints(n. 严格的约束) of Classical Ballet. Shedding(v. 摆脱) classical ballet technique, costume and shoes these early modern dance pioneers practiced free dance. In America Loie Fuller, Isadora Duncan, Ruth St. Denis, Doris Humphrey and Martha Graham developed their own styles of free dance and laid the foundations of American modern dance with their choreography(n. 舞台舞蹈) and teaching. In Europe Francois Delsarte, Émile Jaques-Dalcroze and Rudolf von Laban developed theories of human movement and expression, and methods of instruction that led to the development of European modern and Expressionist(adj. 表现主义的) dance. Their theories and techniques spread well beyond Europe to influence the development of modern dance and theatre via their students and disciples(n. 门徒), and subsequent generations of teachers and performers carried these theories and methods to Russia, the United States and Canada, the UK, Australia and New Zealand.

Janine: Y─know, I know you─re talking, but all I hear is, "Blah. Blah. Blah-blah-blah."

Monica: (steps up and points at her) All right! You and me! Let─s go! Right now!

step up v. 走近

Joey: All right! All right! Enough! Enough! Enough!! Enough! (To Chandler and Monica) You two go home! I-I-I gotta talk to Janine! (They start to leave.)

Chandler: (To Monica) Y─know I think you can take her 撩倒她.

Monica: (to Janine) You'd better hope I don't see you in the hallway!! (They exit.)

Joey: All right, uh, we've got a little bit of a problem here. These people are my friends; you can't treat them that way.

Janine: They said stuff to me too, y-know!

Joey: I know! I know! And I'm going to talk to them about it. They mean so much to me. They: They're like my family. If you guys are gonna be fighting all the time, I-I: I don't think we can be together. It just, it just can't work. It can't. (Starts to break up) I'm very upset.

Janine: Okay. Okay. Would, would it help if I went over and apologized?

Joey: Yeah! Yeah! That would be very helpful! Yeah. (He opens the door for her and she exits into the hallway.)

[Cut to the hallway, Janine is entering as Monica is taking out the garbage.]

Monica: What did I tell you about the hall?!

Janine: I was just coming over here to apologize for my behavior! I'd really like it if we could be friends.

Monica: Well, I know that would make Joey happy, so, I would like that too.

Janine: Great.

Monica: Now come on. (They hug like men.) Well, I'm glad we worked things out.

Janine: Me too.

Monica: Okay.
