Plus he has to eat all those perishables[n. 容易腐坏的东西(尤指食品)] by himself.

Rachel is looking for a date to a charity ball;

Phoebe finds a guy for her, but so do Monica and Chandler;

Ross and Elizabeth continue their "secret" romance.

When he finds out she's going away without him, he starts to worry about how much "partyin'" she might be planning.

Rachel: I'm not paying for half of that! I'm only staying here until my apartment gets fixed.

Joey: Look Rach, my parents bought this fridge just after I was born, okay? Now, I have never had a problem with it. Then you show up and it breaks! What does that tell ya'?

- 2~ Tagalongs or Peanut Butter Patties: These are round cookies with a layer of peanut butter on top, and then covered in chocolate. These cookies come in a red box. Joey: Hey-hey come on you guys, give him a break 别和他闹了. Ross, seriously, how's it going with her?

[Scene: Monica, Chandler, and Phoebe's, Chandler is sitting at the table and Monica is doing something in the kitchen.]

Monica: Chandler, do you think we talk about our relationship enough?

Chandler: Yeah. Do we have any Fruit Roll-Ups?

Fruit Roll-Ups are a type of fruit snack manufactured by General Mills in the United States and Uncle Tobys in Australia. Fruit Roll-Ups were originally invented by James F. Kamman and his team working for the Research and Development (n. 研发部门) of General Mills. Fruit Roll-Ups are an example of a food preservation practice called fruit leather, which precedes (v. 领先) General Mills production of the Fruit Roll-Ups brand. The snack itself, is a pectin (n. 胶质)-based fruit-flavored concoction, wrapped around a piece of cellophane (n. 玻璃纸), allowing for semi-easy removal. Often the consumer must unwrap the cellophane an extra revolution in order to remove the snack due to its tendency to stick to itself. The original production process created square Roll-ups and was too slow to keep up with demand.

(Ross leaves to do so and Rachel enters with a guy.)

Rachel: Hey! You guys umm, I want you to meet Sebastian.

As of 2005, the magazine has been in circulation for over 130 years and has a readership of approximately 10 million. Depending on the season and the availability(n. 实用性) of information, the magazine may offer advice on deer, bass(n. 鲈鱼), birds, trout(n. 鳟鱼), shotguns, and rifles. The magazine also offers tricks(n. 窍门), survival tips, miscellaneous(adj. 各种各样混杂在一起的) facts, and sometimes a recipe. In addition to those departments, each issue contains a few featured articles. Field & Stream once worked with Sierra On-Line and Dynamix to create hunting and fishing simulation(n. 仿真) games. Founded in New York City by Charles Hallock in 1873 as Forest and Stream in newspaper format measuring 16" x 11", it published many articles by George W. Sears in the 1880s that helped to popularize canoeing(n. 玩独木舟), the Adirondack lakes, self-guided(adj. 自动导向的) canoe camping tours, and what we today call environmentalism(n. 环境保护论). The magazine merged with Field and Stream in 1930. Some readers consider Outdoor Life its sister magazine.

Rachel: Oh yes! Thank you! (He does so and Rachel sits down on the couch.)

Rachel: Oh, thank you.

Sebastian: Sure.

Phoebe: So, Sebastian, do you do any volunteer work?

Phoebe: No reason, it's just I know a single guy who does care about other people.

Chandler: Are you funny?

Sebastian: Excuse me?

Rachel: What are you guys doing?

Monica: Are you funny? Tell us a joke!

Sebastian: Look, I just wanted to have coffee with Rachel.

Phoebe: Well, so do a lot of people.

Sebastian: Actually, I uh, I gotta get going. (To Rachel) Give me a call sometime.

Phoebe: Yeah, y-know what I noticed Rachel? He scares easy. Is that the kind of guy you'd like to take to a ball? "Hey Sebastian, would you like to dance?" (Imitates him.) "Uhh, okay | I gotta go!"

Joey: Call it even 那就扯平了?

Phoebe: Okay.

(Ross returns.)

Chandler: (To Ross) Well, there you are! So what did Elizabeth say?

Ross: Well, it turns out that she is going to Daytona for spring break woo-hoo. That means, that means wet T-shirt contests, guys doing shots off of girl─s bodies, waking up next to people you don─t even know :

Daytona Beach is a city in Volusia County, Florida, USA.

A wet T-shirt contest is a form of beauty contest in which the participating women wear a white or light-colored(adj. 浅色的) T-shirt without a bra, while water is sprayed or poured on them to make their clothing semi-transparent. The water is often cold to induce(v. 导致) erect nipples, suggestive of(v. 暗示) sexual arousal(n. 性挑逗). The participants sometimes remove their T-shirts, appearing topless(adj. 袒胸露乳的) or even totally naked. Wet T-shirt contests can be considered a form of striptease(n. 脱衣舞) or erotic dance. The performance is intended to cause sexual arousal among the audience. It is becoming increasingly common for the lady contestants to remove all their clothing and kiss or touch in a sensual(adj. 肉欲的) way the other participants, and thus, the contest starts to slowly shift away from its original format. Many of these contests are filmed, and then distributed over the internet. Analogous(adj. 类似的) "wet boxer-short contest" with male participants are also held. The origin of wet T-shirt contests is generally traced back to Jacqueline Bisset's appearance in the film The Deep (1977), in whose opening sequence she was seen swimming underwater and surfacing(v. 游上水面), wearing a white T-shirt. However, it has been reported that in 1969, Playboy ran a two-page spread of a wet T-shirt contest held at Mammoth Mountain as part of the K2 ski promotional(adj. 促销的) tour, which would make that the first ever.

Joey: Man, she is going to have a great time! Is she staying at the Hotel Corona?

Chandler: You know the hotels?

Joey: Sure! I was there! Spring Break '81! Woo-hoo!

Phoebe: Nothing, you just have to be cool with it.

Ross: Well, what is she goes down and-and sleeps with a bunch of guys?

Chandler: Well, maybe you don't marry this one.

Rachel (burst into laughter) I'm sorry, this is very serious. And you know what, Ross? You like her, she likes you, everything's gonna be fine.

Ross: You're right. I'm probably overreacting. It's just she's staying at this party hotel on the beach with a huge pool and free drinks with every meal.

Rachel: Yeah?

Phoebe: This is Patrick.

Rachel: Oh, hi.

Patrick: Hi.

Elizabeth: Yeah.

Ross: It was pretty funny when I, when I hid it for a while, huh? Anyway, umm, I-I am worried about that bathing suit, not because it's revealing which I'm fine with, no I'm concerned about your health, sun exposure.

reveal vt. 暴露/exposure n. 暴露 暴晒

Elizabeth: Oh, don't worry I have plenty of sun block, it's SPF-30.

sun block n. 防晒乳/SPF 'Sun protection factor 防晒指数/现在所有防晒品都特别标注了 'SPF' 'SPF 和后面的数值即是该产品具有的防晒系数 '意思是皮肤抵挡紫外线中 UVB 的时间倍数 。你可以自己换算需要购买的防晒品 SPF 值 '比如 '假若通常你的皮肤直接受到晒射产生微弱红斑的时间为 20 分钟 '而某个防晒品的 SPF 值为 6 '即表示该防晒品对你能保持 $6 \times 20 = 120$ 分钟的防晒功能 。当然 'SPF 值越高其防晒时间也就越长 。客观上讲 'SPF 指数越高 '所给予的保护便越大 '通常最低防晒品的防晒指数为 SPF2~6 '中等防晒品为 SPF6~8 '高等防晒品为 SPF8~12 'SPF12~20 范围内的产品为高强防晒产品 'SPF 值在 20~30 之间的产品为超强防晒品 。

Ross: Well, if what's in the bottle is actually 30. I mean sometimes you get 30, sometimes it's-it's get 4, and I swear to God more often than not it's just milk.

more often than not adv. 时常 [eg: Every night, more often than not, you'd find my father at the local pub]

Ross: Really?

Elizabeth: Yeah! I'm just going down there to relax and hang out with my friends.

Ross: Okay. Cool.

Elizabeth: Oh hey! Here they are!

(A group of about 10 guys and no women come running around the corner.)

(The guys pick up Elizabeth and carry her onto the plane as she waves bye.)

Ross: Call me!

Rachel: I wanna say a disease.

Joey: (entering) Hey!

All: Hey!

Joey: I just got this really weird message from Ross. He said turn on MTV.

MTV (Music Television) is an American cable television network based in New York City. Launched on August 1, 1981, the original purpose of the channel was to show music videos. Today, MTV broadcasts a variety of (adj. 多种的) music, pop culture, youth culture, and reality television shows aimed at adolescents and young adults. Since its premiere, MTV has revolutionized (v. 使: 彻底革命) the music industry. Slogans such as "I want my MTV" became embedded in public thought, the concept of the VJ (video jockey) was popularized, the idea of a dedicated (adj. 专门的) video-based outlet for music was introduced, and both artists and fans found a central location for music events, news, and promotion. MTV has also been referenced countless times by musicians, other TV channels and shows, films and books. MTV has spawned a handful of sister channels in the U.S. and dozens of affiliated international channels around the world. MTV's moral (adj. 精神上的) influence on young people, including examples of censorship (n. 审查制度) and social activism (n. 激进主义) on the channel, has been the subject of debate for years. MTV's choice to focus on non-music programming has also been contested relentlessly (adv. 无情地), demonstrating the channel's continued impact on popular culture.

Rachel: Huh. All right.

(Rachel does so and it's one of those dance party shows they have during spring break and we see :))

Phoebe: Oh my God, look! That's Elizabeth!

(Suddenly Ross jumps in and starts dancing with her.)

Rachel: Oh-oh Professor Geller.

Joey: Ahh, to be 13 again.

Chandler: Yeah.
